Strategic Global Advisors Hires Experienced International Portfolio Manager To Strengthen Investment Capabilities

Newport Beach, CA – February 8, 2008 – Strategic Global Advisors (“SGA”) has announced that it has hired Mark Wimer, CFA, to join its portfolio management team and contribute to the firm’s quantitative investment and research process. Mr. Wimer left Harris Investment Management, where he was lead portfolio manager for more than $700 million in quantitative domestic and international equity strategies.

Mr. Wimer will work with members of the portfolio management team, Cynthia Tusan, CFA, president, Gary Baierl, PhD, CIO and Cherie Badri, CFA, senior research analyst, to co-manage SGA’s International Large Cap Core Equity and International Small-Mid Cap Core Equity portfolios. His responsibilities include day-to-day management of portfolios as well as developing and enhancing quantitative stock selection models and portfolio construction techniques.

“Mark’s experience and depth of knowledge in quantitative security selection processes and portfolio management adds tremendous value to our firm and ultimately our clients’ portfolios,” said Cynthia Tusan. “We have known Mark for many years, and we are certain that he will enhance our efforts to offer exceptional investment opportunities in overlooked foreign stocks to our clients.”

Mr. Wimer joins SGA after serving as portfolio manager for several quantitatively-driven domestic and international equity strategies at Harris. In addition to his portfolio management capabilities, Mr. Wimer has extensive experience in investment research and consulting having worked with several of the world’s leading financial management firms: Deutsche Bank, Chicago Investment Analytics, which became a division of Charles Schwab & Co., Ibbotson Associates and Barra RogersCasey. Mark holds a

B.S. in Computer & Electrical Engineering from Purdue University and an M.B.A. from the Johnson School at Cornell University.
